Department of Psychology and Neuroscience
Registration and Enrollment for Fall 2019

A majority of seats in all 200 level and upper level (courses numbered 400 and above) undergraduate psychology and neuroscience courses will be restricted to PSYC and NSCI majors only when registration begins on April 2\textsuperscript{nd} and will remain in place until open enrollment begins on August 5\textsuperscript{th}. Restrictions will be removed on the morning of August 5\textsuperscript{th} and will be reinstated the week before classes start on August 13\textsuperscript{th}. These restrictions will then be removed again on the morning of August 26\textsuperscript{th}.

Cognitive science and neuroscience minors will continue to have unrestricted access to PSYC and NSCI courses related to their minor during all registration restriction periods. Please note: for some courses, if all minor spots are full and only major spots remain, Connect Carolina will not allow a minor to take a major spot.

Psychology Majors and Neuroscience Majors

As always, we are working hard to meet the student demand for all of our courses. If you are concerned about completing the requirements for the psychology or neuroscience major in time to graduate, here are a few reminders:

- First, you need to monitor Connect Carolina diligently and frequently during the entirety of the open enrollment period and make sure that you register at the beginning of your scheduled enrollment appointment
- Second, note that only \textit{two} upper-level courses are required for a psychology major and seniors have priority in registering for them
- Third, we recommend that you consider taking summer school; we will offer several upper-level courses during the summer and often in Maymester as well and they rarely fill up

Our Departmental Enrollment Policy requires all course registration to be handled on a first-come, first-serve basis in the Connect Carolina system. \textbf{Please do not contact the instructors directly}, as the Department does not keep special enrollment lists and no one may be added outright to a course that is already closed in Connect Carolina. Our students have great success in enrolling in the courses they need merely by being aware of their registration schedule and by being persistent in Connect Carolina.

The waitlists for the Fall 2019 term will remain in place until August 27\textsuperscript{th}; however, the last day to add yourself to a waitlist is August 4\textsuperscript{th}. For those of you not on a waitlist, please continue to monitor Connect Carolina closely to register for your necessary courses.

If you are a \textbf{senior psychology or neuroscience major} planning to graduate in December 2019 and you do not successfully enroll in the courses that you need to graduate by the end of late registration please contact the Department of Psychology & Neuroscience Student Services Office at \texttt{blakek@email.unc.edu}
